This activity is intended for primary care physicians, radiologists, pulmonologists, surgeons, oncologists, nurses, physician assistants, and all ancillary staff and trainees.

Upon completion of this activity, participants will be able to:

1. Review the guidelines established by the Fleischner Society, American College of Chest Physicians, and other groups regarding the evaluation and management of pulmonary nodules.
2. Identify the spectrum of radiologic appearance of pulmonary nodules and the range of differential diagnoses that may guide the choice of imaging.
3. Identify the diagnostic, therapeutic, and prognostic issues related to lung cancer.
4. Utilize guidelines within a wider framework that includes multidisciplinary methods of evaluation and treatment.
5. Identify the state-of-the-art tools being used by thoracic surgeons, pulmonologists, radiologists, and oncologists.

6. Gain hands-on experience with new technologies.

7. Describe new research related to pulmonary nodules and lung cancer.
